MIKE LINDELL is one of the most successful Christian business leaders of all time. Recently, he spoke to his largest crowd – more than 12,000 students at Liberty University’s Convocation. Many know Mike as the CEO and inventor of MyPillow, but some haven’t heard his story of radical freedom from addiction.

Mike received a dream to create MyPillow in 2004, and knew it was God-inspired. He often says the pillow is just a platform for his highest calling, which is leading people to Jesus.

Because of his incredible success, many would be surprised to know that for 25 years of his life, Mike was an alcoholic and crack cocaine addict - deep into his addiction during the early days of MyPillow. Although he was still able to function while using crack, he knew God had much greater plans for him that would not come to life if he didn’t stop.

After things had progressed to a very low point, Mike quit all of his addictions on January 16th, 2009. He knew that if he didn’t stop that very day, he would miss out on what God had planned next for his life. He simply prayed and asked for his desire to be taken away, and when he woke up the next morning the urge to use was totally gone.

Since he gave his life to Jesus, there have been many miracles in Mike’s personal and professional life – really one-in-a-million events. MyPillow has exploded with growth, and now Mike is focusing his efforts on bringing hope to the addict still in the chains of addiction through the soon to be launched Lindell Recovery Network.

Mike conquered a 25 year drug addiction through the power of prayer, and honestly believes that with God, all things are possible! He wants to spread that hope to people with the Lindell Recovery Network. The LRN will be an amazing platform offering hope, help, and mentorship to struggling people everywhere.
